HARVESTING HISTORY WHILE FARMING THE FLATS

TUESDAY 27 MAY, 7:30 PM

MURIEL MURCH

DISCUSSES HER NEW MEMOIR

“THIS BOOK IS LIKE ITS AUTHOR: SMART,
FUNNY, GENEROUS, AND HONEST, A PURE
DELIGHT TO READ!”

—LINDA RONSTADT

Blending the themes of family, farming, and filmmaking, Harvesting History while Farming the Flats follows Muriel Murch's journey from Los Angeles to West Marin, where she and her husband, filmmaker Walter Murch, settled on a farm. Here, their life intertwined with a changing community, organic farming, and the Bay Area's burgeoning independent film scene, including interactions with key figures from the independent film movement like George Lucas and Francis Ford Coppola, close friends and collaborators with Walter. Murch's writing weaves a rich tapestry around medicine, agriculture, rural life and creativity, all radiating from her family's home on Gospel Flats in Bolinas, Northern California. Murch is a co-founder of KWMR community radio, and continues to produce A Letter from A. Broad biweekly for the station and on www.murielmurch.com.
